MOUNT PROSPECT PUBLIC LIBRARY
INTERNET SERVICE POLICY

The internet allows patrons to connect to sites/resources outside of Mount Prospect Public Library. Mount Prospect Public Library has no control over these sites/resources nor does the Library have complete knowledge of what is available on the internet. Patrons access the internet at their own risk. Mount Prospect Public Library supports the right of all library users to access information using the Library's public access computers.

Mount Prospect Public Library makes no representations or warranties of any kind to users including, but not limited to, warranties of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose. Mount Prospect Public Library further makes no representations about the security of information transmitted or the suitability of any software or content or information made accessible by the software of this system. Information on the internet may be reliable, complete, and accurate or it may be inaccurate, incomplete, out-of-date, or unavailable at times.

By using the Library's public access computers, you agree that Mount Prospect Public Library shall not be liable for any damages suffered by the users of this system or the software, programming, and other documentation found on this system.

Mount Prospect Public Library further disclaims any liability whatsoever for any of the information, documentation, programs, software, or other material which is or may become a part of the system, the user agrees to abide by the copyright laws and all other applicable laws when using the Library's public access computers.

Mount Prospect Public Library is part of the Illinois Century Network (ICN). Patrons using the internet must also abide by the Illinois Department of Innovation & Technology Acceptable Use Policy for users of Illinois Century Network, available at https://www.illinois.gov/icn/about/Documents/DoIT-ICN-AUP.pdf.

Mount Prospect Public Library uses filtering software on all public access computers. Filtering software cannot guarantee the appropriateness of internet sites for particular age groups nor that sites for legitimate research and value are not blocked. Individuals 17 years and older may request a blocked site be reviewed by speaking with staff, who will complete the Request for Reconsideration of Print, Non-print, Internet Sites, and Digital Resources form on behalf of the patron for further review.

Library patrons are asked to consider the public space used by individuals of all ages, backgrounds, and sensibilities when accessing potentially controversial, offensive, or disturbing information and images. The Library reserves the right to require individuals to discontinue the display of information and images that disrupt the orderly operation of the Library.
